

ADVANCED MATERIALS

A new microfluidic-assisted self-healing-driven assembly strategy enabling continuous and controllable construction of programmed ordered assemblies is developed by Su Chen and co-workers in article number 1803475. This allows self-assembly to be carried out on the macroscopic scale toward tissue materials and light-emitting diode devices.